

XP DAYS 2006 BENELUX

A two day conference on agile software development

16 - 17 November 2006
Elewijt conference center
Elewijt Belgium

XP Day Benelux is a two day international conference about agile software development, intended for software development and business people from all walks of life.

It provides a good opportunity for exchanging ideas and sharing experiences and is suited for both experienced participants and beginners in agile software development. The focus of this conference is on practical knowledge, real-world experience, and active participation of everyone.

The number of participants is limited to 120.

This event is organized by Agile Systems vzw with the Dutch and Belgian XP users groups. Agile Systems is a non-profit organisation with the goal of collecting and disseminating knowledge and experience about agile software development and systems thinking.

What others have said

"Highly interactive sessions. A lot of discussion"

"High proportion of real practitioners"

"Nice people, good interaction between people"

"Great sessions"

"The informal atmosphere made it a true learning experience"

"XP/Agile movement is very much alive"

"Programming is more than having technical skills"

"Really worth it. It makes one think!!"
